TO

A SERIES OF MS. VOLUMES PRESERVED IN THE RECORD
TOWER, DUBLIN CASTLE ;

CONTAINING

Transcripts of State Papers and other Documents

CHIEFLY RELATING TO THE

ACTS OF SETTLEMENT AND EXPLANATION, AND TO THE PROCEEDINGS
UNDER THESE ACTS.

THE Set of Books to which the following Repertory refers, consists of Nine MS. Volumes in folio, inscribed on the covers, " Lib. A, B, C, D, E, F, H, L, M. ;" (the Letters G. I. and K. being deficient,) but without titles, or any other distinguishing marks to indicate their date, or the nature of their contents. With very few exceptions, and those of a trivial nature, they relate wholly to the Affairs of Ireland, and more particularly to the Proceedings under the Acts of Settlement and Explanation during the reign of Charles II. They were transferred to the custody of the Commissioners of Records in the year 1811, by the Lord Maryborough, then Chief Secretary to the Lord Lieutenant, who, in his letter to the Board on the subject, states that they had been the property of the late Viscount Mountjoy.

From the hand-writing, and other internal evidence, these Volumes appear to have been compiled during the period to which they relate ; and an article in one of them, in which the same person who, in the table of contents, is spoken of in the first person, is named Sir Geo. Lane in the corresponding article in the body of the work, affords reason for inferring that they were formed by or under the immediate cognizance of this individual, who was Secretary of State and a Privy Councillor under Charles II., and also Keeper of the Records in Birmingham Tower, Dublin Castle.

Some further light has been thrown on the history of these Volumes, from a Report made to the Commissioners of Records by their Secretary, in the year 1825, relative to a large collection of books and documents, of the period above noticed, in the possession of the Earl Annesley, which had been inspected by him in conjunction with Messrs. Erck and Hardiman, two of the Sub-Commissioners. It appears from the catalogue of the contents of that collection, formed by them and annexed to the Secretary's Report, that there are in it two volumes, marked on the covers " Lib. G." and " Lib. K." consisting of transcripts of official documents and other state papers, of a character precisely similar to those in the possession of the Board of Records; and it is to be observed, that the letters by which they are marked are two of those which are deficient in the set of books now under consideration. These circumstances, together with the nature of the contents, being contemporaneous, if not official, copies of public documents of great interest, must render them highly valuable in inquiries connected with the persons and occurrences of that era.

In order to render these Volumes more extensively useful for the purpose of research, a Third Index is annexed, in addition to those of the Persons and Places mentioned in the Repertory, containing the Names of every person of any note which occur in the original volumes, but which could not with propriety be introduced into the printed work.

Edward Groves,
Sub-Commissioner.

Being indicted as a rebel, he could not plead on account of his age. His son, though living within the line, was endeavoured to be transplanted, but refused to go, and was not proceeded against, though Doctor Yarner was of the court of justice; his property was granted to said Yarner, on an unjust claim of services in the army, and he remains dispossessed, though recommended to the lords justices by the King's letters of 30 Nov. 1660, and 7 June 1661.—Here follow, A certificate in his favour—order of council, 15 Jan. 1658, to put Doctor Abraham Varner in possession of the lands of Clonemaning, Ballytortane, Ballydonfine, Rahingree, Croneken, Killadergee, Tomglomy, Barnecoile, Ballingurron, Kappakillec, and 135 a. in Eastmore or Balliherrigow; containing 825 a., and valued at 100s. yearly; also a protection to Edward Walsh and his family . . . p. 307.

Petition of William Montgomery of Rosemount, Down co., esq., stating that his father, Sir James Montgomery, was forced to fly from Ireland for his loyalty; stating also his own losses and sufferings, and praying for a reprizal of the lands of Florida which he had purchased, but was unable to keep.—Here follow, A letter from Montgomery to the Primate of England for his influence—a certificate in his favour by the Marquis of Ormond—draft of a proviso in his favour—a letter from Montgomery to Sir Henry Bennet, 3d April 1664, promising him 100*l.* for his interest, and stating some particulars of his case, in which Patrick Allen of New Row, gent., and Col. Robert Barrow, are mentioned . . . p. 312.

Petition of the Forty-nine Officers, praying attention to the following particulars:—

1. That one sixth of the lands allotted for the forty-nine officers in Wicklow, Longford, Leitrim, and Donegal, and all within the line not disposed of, which were allotted for satisfaction of their arrears, are to be defalked for making up of reprizals, which they think severe; because—1st. These four counties have more unprofitable lands than any other six counties, except Kerry, and much forfeited land; three of them are distant from Dublin, and much of the land yields not more than double the quit rent; and the towns of Ireland are now one third worse than when first allotted.—2d. These officers have been great sufferers, being subjected to heavy compositions by the usurped government, and many of them excepted from life and estate.—3d. The soldiers and adventurers have been in possession of their allotments for several years, while the forty-nine officers have received nothing as yet.
2. The baronies of Barrymore and Muskerry were appropriated, by the Act of Settlement, for reprizing the townsmen of Cork, Youghal, and Kingsale, and the forty-nine officers; but by the new bill they are cast into the mass of reprizals, which injures these latter; because—1st. The townsmen, by receiving reprizals in distant parts, may suffer losses above the value of what they receive.—2d. If reprizals fall short, many of the claimants may be wholly unprovided for.
3. The proviso for securing purchases made by protestants, which is about to be inserted in the clause for securing the unrestorable houses in corporations to the forty-nine officers, will render such clause of no effect.
4. They pray for a clause for removing doubts as to the proviso in the Act of Settlement, stating that the benefit arising from redemption of mortgages is to be assigned to the forty-nine officers.
5. They pray for a clause to confirm that which states that one third of the forfeited lands in Dublin should be allotted for their reprizal.
6. That if any of the transplanted persons now settled on the mile line be removed, their lands be added to those for the forty-nine officers.
7. That they be reprized for the lands restored to the Earl of Tirconnell.
8. That a timely distribution be made of their security.
9. That the houses and lands in cities or towns corporate, or within their security, be not put into the hands of papists . . . p. 320.

Answer of the Forty-nine Officers to that part of Sir Nicholas Plunkett's observations, which relate to the unrestorable houses in corporations; "being the bill now under consideration, explained parte of their security," with the draft of a proviso in their favour . . . p. 327.

Petition of John Burke of Pallice, esq., that he was a captain of the Marquis of Clanrickard, when lord deputy, and praying to be restored without reprizal.—No date . . . p. 332.

Petition of Thady Kennedy of Scriboge, pleading innocence, and praying his restoration.—No date . . . p. 333.

Petition of Captain Thomas Squinnell or Symnell, to be restored to an island in the Shannon, purchased by him, or to have a reprizal.—No date . . . p. 334.

Reasons by the Forty-nine Officers against losing any part of their security:—

1. The counties of Wicklow, Longford; Leitrim, and Donegal, part of their securities, are plantation counties, and are now planted with English, and the corporations are much decayed since the declaration.
2. The best land in these counties is hardly as good as that given to the adventurers and soldiers as unprofitable.
3. The mile line, part of their security, is given to transplanted persons.

4. They have paid very heavy compositions.
5. They are to pay eight years purchase at least, while the adventurers and soldiers pay only two or three.
6. They are to pay for improvements—the adventurers and soldiers not.
7. The adventurers and soldiers are to be satisfied at 12s. 6d. per pound; the forty-nine officers at 10s. 4d. only.
8. The adventurers have been in possession ten years, while the forty-nine officers have been in banishment, poverty, and prison.
9. The adventurers and soldiers escape many qualifications; the forty-nine officers fear none, nor can suffer by them.
10. The adventurers have much additional land as unprofitable, and by over-measurement.
11. The forty-nine officers claim a just debt; the soldiers is a free gift.
12. The third part of Dublin co., which was added to the forty-nine officers share, is useless to them, being otherwise disposed of.
13. The same as to the baronies of Barrymore and Muskerry, granted to them as reprises.
14. Their losses from adjudications of the Court of Claims have been greater than those of the adventurers, being much above one third of their security.
15. The forty-nine officers, being the bulk of the nobility and gentry, gave the first check to the rebellion, were always loyal, and are now better able to do the King service in Ireland than all the other interests.
16. Those of them who submitted to the Usurper are to be treated differently from the rest; and the forty-nine officers were despoiled of more in the beginning of the war than the whole arrear now claimed . . . p.365.

REASONS why the commissioners for executing the Act of Settlement desisted, after 21 August last, until the obstructions be removed by a new bill.—Read 30 November 1663.

1. The commissioners were instructed to restore,
 - 1st, Innocent protestants and papists who took no decrees in Connaught or Clare.
 - 2d, Those who took such decrees.
 - 3d, Ensignmen.
 - 4th, Such as have a right to articles of peace.
2. The time for restoring innocents and making reprizals is limited to 22d August ult.
3. That time was occupied in restoring those of the first class, and only about one sixth of those of the second.
4. If the commissioners had proceeded, the estates of all innocents unheard must have been confirmed to adventurers and soldiers, contrary to the King's declaration.
5. If they had proceeded to the third and fourth class, it would have been to no effect; for the time for reprizals being expired, no reprizals could be made to soldiers and adventurers in possession.
6. The commissioners applied for an Act to extend the time, instead of which the bill under consideration was transmitted.
7. They could not have made reprizals before 22 August, because the innocents must first be restored; and had reprizals been previously made, such lands might have been evicted by the innocent proprietors; and if so, it is doubtful whether those reprized could have a second reprizal.
8. The sub-commissioners appointed to survey the lands could never obtain liberty to go on with that work . . . p. 1.

Further obstructions stated by the commissioners.—Read 30 November 1663 . . . p. 2.
(122.)

Differences between the bill under consideration and the declaration and instructions:—

The bill takes away—

1. The estates.—1. Of all innocent papists not yet heard.
- 2. Of those transplanted.—3. Of the ensignmen.—
4. Of the articlers, all whose interest were by the declaration to have the first place.
2. The power of restoring papists to houses, &c. in corporations.
3. Gives a power to diminish the quit-rents.
4. Repeals the clause against those who impeded the restoration, or disturbed the peace since.
5. Repeals the examination relative to bribery, forgery, &c.
6. Takes away a sixth part from adventurers and soldiers, contrary to the declaration . . . p. 3.

Petition of Sir John Skeffington, Col. John Brett, Captain John Nicholas, Mr. Myles Cooke, Mr. Nathan Dunbavan, and Mr. Peter Beaghane, intrusted for the soldiers, that none of them have been as yet settled in the forfeited lands, but, on the contrary, many hundreds of them dispossessed of lands to the amount of 925,000*a.*; that, on perusal of the draft of the bill now prepared, they find themselves in a worse situation than by the Act of Settlement, because,

1. The bill deprives them of the benefit of reprisals.
2. That those of them to be reprimed for the benefit of the twenty nominees and other Irish restored, are to be reprimed in quantity only, and not in value, worth, and purchase, as was proposed by the nominees themselves.
3. That the various deductions for bishops lands, glebes, &c., from the adventurers and soldiers allotment of 1,800,000 acres, will reduce them nearly by 81,738 acres.
4. Former decrees, however unjust, are confirmed, and therefore no redress afforded to the sufferers.
5. No positive time is fixed for the settlement of Ireland.
6. By the original Act of 17th & 18th C. i. 2,500,000 acres were allotted to adventurers alone; whereas now both they and the soldiers have only 1,800,000 allotted to them.

9. That their allotments should be secured to them free from incumbrances.

12. That a clause be inserted to secure them against suits by the restored Irish.—Read 7 July 1665, and laid aside . . . p. 134.
